As part of our consulting role, we work with K-12 professional staff to support core content curriculum (Math, Technology, English, Reading, Language Arts, Science and Social Studies), instructional practices, and assessment needs to help improve student achievement. Modeling lessons, coaching teachers, and providing a variety of resources/materials are offered as part of the consultation process.

Other areas of consultation include (but not limited to):

- Differentiation;
- Instructional Strategies;
- Understanding and utilizing data to improve student learning;
- Professional Learning Communities;
- Curriculum Writing;
- and Literacy across the content areas.

Consulting can be done individually, small group, or in a large group in the form of professional development.

We know that “one size fits all” professional development is not effective. Therefore, we specialize in developing and presenting professional development opportunities tailored to meet the needs of your staff. Our professional development opportunities consist of engaging activities that are often hands-on, allow for collaboration among participants, and provides for a course of action in taking the “next steps”. For more information, please contact the Lancaster-Lebanon IU13 Student Services Dept.
