

Redesigning School with the Learner in Mind

Unleash limitless learning potential!

We face the urgent challenge to provide our learners with the skills, knowledge, and experiences that prepare them for success in an era of constant learning, change, and innovation. Meeting the challenge has more to do with rethinking the design of schools and the experience of learners than it has to do with the effort, commitment, or accountability of those working and learning in schools. Join nationally recognized expert Dr. James Rickabaugh for a day of exploration, examination, reflection, and rethinking as we consider the “why,” “what,” and “how” of redesigning the institution we call school to place learners at the center and unleash limitless learning potential.

Presenter: Dr. James Rickabaugh

Dr. James Rickabaugh serves as Senior Advisor at the Institute for Personalized Learning, an education innovation lab dedicated to the transformation of public education. The Institute serves more than 60 school districts across Wisconsin and several other states. Dr. Rickabaugh formerly served as Director of the Institute for Personalized Learning. He served as Superintendent of the Whitefish Bay Schools, Burnsville-Eagan-Savage School District, and Oconomowoc Area School District. He also served as Midwest Regional President for Voyager Expanded Learning.

Dr. Rickabaugh was Wisconsin Superintendent of the Year in 2008 and Minnesota Superintendent of the Year in 1996. He received the Excellence in Educational Leadership Award in 2005 from the University Council for Educational Administration, a lifetime achievement award from the Master Teacher in 2010, and the Aurora Institute Contribution to the Field award in 2016. Dr. Rickabaugh is the author of Tapping the Power of Personalized Learning: A Roadmap for School Leaders, focused on helping principals and other educational leaders to engage their staffs in designing and implementing personalized learning ecosystems. He also is a co-author of Five Levers to Improve Learning: How to Prioritize for Powerful Results in Your School. Dr. Rickabaugh serves on the board of the Wisconsin Education Business Roundtable. He also provides support and consultation to several other organizations and agencies.
