Summer is a perfect time to have fun making new friends while building computational thinking skills and learning how to use block coding with Ozobots and Spheros! With guidance from the IU13 Student Services staff, led by Judy Trusz, campers will use coding to create games while they connect with others who love technology. Because pair coding is valuable and fun, campers will work together to modify and create gaming programs during this highly interactive session. Enrollment is limited - register right away.

Instructor: Judy Trusz is currently the Nonpublic Educational Consultant in Student Services at IU13. She is also a former Algebra teacher and recently received the honor of being named a Keystone Technology Innovator STAR. Ms. Trusz creates presentations on a variety of topics including: Codable Robots, Google Apps for Education, and a variety of math topics. She enjoys coaching classroom teachers on integrating technology into their classrooms and leading IU13 SEE Seminars for gifted/advanced learners.

NOTE: This camp is designed at a basic level with no previous experience with block coding required.

What to Bring/Wear:

- Lunch, drink, and filled water bottle. IU13 will provide a light snack.
