Pennsylvania's mountains, valleys, and rivers are full of amazing wildlife, and students are invited to explore it up close! In this fun, interactive program led by Raven Ridge Wildlife Center's Education Coordinator, Molly Snavely, students will discover the incredible animals native to Pennsylvania and the Mid-Atlantic region and learn how their unique adaptations help them survive and thrive in the wild.

Students will spend time observing and interacting with several live animals as they meet Raven Ridge's animal ambassadors, which include reptiles, mammals, and birds of prey. Through hands-on activities, close observation, and engaging discussions, students will build a deeper understanding of how these animals live and why they matter.

Students will leave feeling inspired, connected to local wildlife, and empowered with simple ways they can help protect the animals and habitats right in their own backyard.
